MISSION

The ABDEH is a multidisciplinary organization that gathers Brazilian professionals, researchers and businesses related to the healthcare sector, whose main goal is to contribute to a continuous evolution of the country's healthcare network infrastructure.

GOALS

- Gather professionals working on the conception, designing, building, equipping, managing and operating of the Healthcare Services (EAS).
- Promote, develop and share knowledge about EAS.
- Promote the principle of integrated and total planning in the EAS conception and production through the improvement of interdisciplinary participation.
- Promote a more efficient and competent managing of the project making, building, furnishing, maintenance and safety of the EAS.
- Compare local and international experiences.
- Offer assistance and establish covenants with other national and international education, research and extension organizations.
- Carry out congresses, seminars, conferences and technical meetings in order to stimulate and develop among the participants the knowledge on EAS, encouraging the experience exchange among experts and similar associations locally and abroad.
- Divulge studies, researches, papers and reports through private agencies or other means of publicizing.
- Offer courses on themes related to the conception, production, managing and operating the EAS.

BRIEF HISTORY OF ABDEH

- ABDEH was founded in 1994, by a small group of architects, engineers and hospital managers which shared the common interest of improving the quality of the healthcare network. The first board of directors was entirely from São Paulo, led by the architect João Carlos Bross, who became the founding president.
- In 1996, the second board of directors took office with the president being the architect Jayme Spínola Castro Neto.
- In 1998, the architect Mariluz Gómez is elected and transfers the headquarters to the city of Londrina, where it stayed for 2 years more.
- In 2000, the headquarters is transferred to Porto Alegre, as the architect Irineu Breitman takes the presidency until June 2002.
- In 2002, the 5th ABDEH board of directors takes office, with the engineer Salim Lamha Neto as the president. In this period, it was decided that the headquarters would be permanently set in São Paulo.
- In 2005, the architect Flavio Kelner from Rio de Janeiro takes on the presidency of the association, managing to increase the number of associates and the visibility of ABDEH in the specialized media.

- In 2008, the architect Flavio Bicalho from the National Capital Brasilia is elected and, as ABDEH's seventh president, is responsible for a wide administrative restructuring of the association, as well as organizing its 5th congress in 2010.
- In 2011, the architect Fabio Bitencourt is elected as the eight president, his presidency is marked for the increase in international participation and cooperation, especially among Latin countries and also the IFHE, and for organizing the 6th congress in Florianopolis.
- In 2014, the architect Marcio Nascimento de Oliveira becomes the 9th president of the association and decides to focus his efforts on increasing the offer of courses and publications, also organizing the 7th congress in Salvador in 2016 and strengthening ABDEH's presence in the international scene, with the organization of an International Seminar at Rio de Janeiro, 2017.
